TASTE OF CAMBODIA

The quintessential ceramic-bowled Num Banh Chok rice noodles embody the essence of the Khmer identity with origins derived from a popular Khmer folk legend that tells the tale of a revolution scholar, Thonchey who was exiled by the King to China, and how he made this staple dish popular upon his return.

Join our passionate chefs as they take you into the heartbeat of the community as you immerse in colorful sights, unique smells and lively sounds of the market. Journey past Angkor Wat in a traditional tuk-tuk to Preas Dak village, where a fifth-generation family upholds the rigorous production of Num Banh Chok. Marvel at the rhythmic synergy among the womenfolk as they laboriously hand crank stone mills and operate 3m-long wooden equipment, creating dainty millimeter-wide rice noodles.

Visit a local ceramic pottery village for an introduction to the production of Khmer hand-crafted ceramic bowls typically used by the locals to serve Num Banh Chok and other curry dishes, crafted by tradesmen using ancient pottery techniques that date back over a thousand years. Top this truly sensational cultural expedition by enjoying a bowl of fresh Rice Noodles in a fish curry broth at the village or as interpreted by our very own chefs at the hotel.

Available daily : 9:00 AM – 12:00 PM / 2:00 PM – 5:00 PM

OUR COMMITMENT - CARE FOR THE COMMUNITY

A collaborative effort in preserving the heritage and nature of Siem Reap, the team from Park Hyatt Siem Reap recently partnered with the local villagers to clean the areas by the Baray, a 12th century man-made lake created between the circa of 1110 – 1150, close to the grandeur of the Angkor Wat. The Baray during the past era was used to store excess water, which was distributed to paddy fields between the temple area and Tonle Sap Lake, and to the communities living around the temple surrounds for their daily use. Today, the Baray is a popular tourist destination due to its close proximity to the Angkor Wat temples.

This collaboration effort will help to preserve the environment around Angkor Wat, a UNESCO World Heritage Site, and the beauty of the natural foliage surrounding the Baray. This will also help to ensure clean water and environment, more sustainable for the local communities living within the area and for future generations.

We are proud to be part of this initiative and are committed to helping to preserve our heritage and environment for the benefit of all. This collaboration between Park Hyatt Siem Reap and the local villagers are a testament to the importance of our commitment to the 'Care for the Community' and a reminder that when we work together, we can make a positive difference.
